Gen. Patton Apologizes To Entire Seventh Army for Striking Soldier

Command of Army; Served by Many Best S. Field Officers.

EDWARD KENNEDY, War Correspondent

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Nov. 23—It was disclosed today that Gen. Patton Jr. had apologized to the entire Seventh Army for striking a soldier in the Sicilian campaign.

One time allied headquarters correspondent of all the facts there is no incident which since has been one of the most discussed among the troops. Patton was not relieved of command of the Seventh Army and received a commendation from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as has seldom been given to a commander of an army.

disclosure came from an official headquarters statement, saying "Gen. Patton, commanding the Seventh Army, is continuing to lead his army and is continuing to lead his army and is continuing to lead his army."

At a general, whose name is not given, who was admitted by all who knew him to be a man of battle lost his mind and later admitted he had made a mistake.

incident consisted of this: Patton jumped a shell-thrower in a hospital tent, he thought the soldier was his duty.

incident occurred early in the Sicilian campaign, one of its most critical moments.

he mumbled a reply, "I'm not a doctor," he repeated his outburst.

he ordered the soldier to get up and go to bed, and he said, "I'm not a doctor," he repeated his outburst.

he fell over slightly, and he said, "I'm not a doctor," he repeated his outburst.

NAZIS ATTACK EIGHTH ARMY

British Reported To Have Repulsed Germans in Two-Hour Battle.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, ALGIERS, Nov. 23—A strong German force has launched a sharp counterattack on the British Eighth army lines northwest of Agone, but was beaten back after two hours of fighting, official reports from the front disclosed today.

Agone, in the inland sector of the Eighth army front, was captured Sunday by Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's troops.

At the same time other Eighth army units chased the enemy from high ground overlooking Alfedena from the southeast in inland mountain sectors.

United States troops wiped out a German machinegun position northwest of Montegualia, also inland, without loss to themselves.

The allied commander said the battle front was still a sea of mud and rivers rendering most operations impossible.

On the fifth army front British patrols covered movements of enemy forces on and near Mount Camino, southwest of the town of Magnan, and allied artillery laid down a heavy bombardment over the entire zone.

Throughout the central portion of the front, the Germans continued to apply the torch to towns and villages in the north, particularly beyond San Pietro Avellana which is in the Eighth army's possession.

In that area, Alfedena and Castel Di Sangro have previously been observed burning as the enemy sought to destroy all facilities and shelter, which would be of value to the allied troops.

Although ground forces were generally bogged down, allied medium bombers were out over the area north of Rome attacking railway centers and airfields at Foligno, 63 miles northeast of the Italian capital.

Medium bombers also chattered up hits on a railway bridge at Persina, and road and railway targets along Italy's east coast were bombed by both medium and light bombers.

Civitavecchia harbor north of Rome on the west coast received a double pounding from fighter-bombers while railway targets 20 miles northeast of Foligno were attacked.

All types of planes from medium bombers down to fighters "cooperated in strength with the army, especially in the Lariano and Fossacesia areas," said Gen. Montgomery's Eighth army front.

Indiana Father Says Son Wrote of Patton Incident

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 23—Herbert F. Kuhl, a Mishawaka casket maker, brought to the South Bend Tribune today a letter from his 26-year-old son, Pvt. Charles Herman Kuhl, in which the young man wrote "General Patton slapped my face yesterday and kicked me in the pants and cussed me."

The letter indicated the soldier was in a Sicilian hospital. It was dated Aug. 1.

The father probably won't go through it, Kuhl wrote, "but I don't know. Just forget about it in your letters."

The elder Kuhl told the Tribune of another letter received from his son in which the soldier told of being taken from Sicily to North Africa for a hearing on the incident.

The father said his son wrote that after this hearing he was escorted to General Patton's office. Kuhl quoted his son as writing that General Patton apologized to him, shook hands with him and told him he had "acted too hastily."

Kuhl said his son was inducted into the army last Dec. 18 at Camp Perry, O.

Pvt. Kuhl is married to Lucretia Kuhl, who is employed in a war plant at South Bend. He is the father of a two-year-old daughter by a previous marriage.

TWO BOYS EXPLAIN ENTRY INTO UNOCCUPIED HOUSE

"Burglary" Report Exaggerated, Account in Court Indicates.

Two boys, one six and one nine years old, accompanied by their mothers, appeared in juvenile court yesterday afternoon to explain their entry into an unoccupied house in a residential neighborhood near their homes, Sunday afternoon. The six-year-old, picked up by city police, spent Sunday night at the County Detention home. His companion, who, according to the boys' story, had brought some articles on the porch, was not apprehended by the officers.

The six-year-old boy told the judge that the window had been broken out before he entered the house and the older of the pair admitted he had been in the house on the day previous. Carried check and reports found the younger had been on the floor, the boys stated. There are to be returned either to the juvenile court or to the police station today.

Boys of the neighborhood had been playing around the unoccupied residence, which is furnished, and the boys' story was that they had entered the house to get some of the things which were in the house.

In that area, Alfedena and Castel Di Sangro have previously been observed burning as the enemy sought to destroy all facilities and shelter, which would be of value to the allied troops.

Although ground forces were generally bogged down, allied medium bombers were out over the area north of Rome attacking railway centers and airfields at Foligno, 63 miles northeast of the Italian capital.

FIRE SWEEPS FARM SOUTH OF NEVADA

NEVADA, Nov. 23—A barn, two large sheds, a corner, 25 head of stock, farm machinery including a tractor and combine, a 1935 Ford car, 100 bushels of corn and 20 tons of hay were destroyed in a fire at the Charles Bardon home four miles south of here last night.

The fire, which included five cows, two horses, 12 hogs and six yearling calves. The blaze was discovered by a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bardon about 8 o'clock, shortly after her parents had gone to the Raymond Cregar home west of here to attend a Farm Bureau meeting. About the same time the blaze was discovered by neighbors who notified the Nevada fire department. A bucket brigade was organized but the fire had gained too much headway to save the buildings or contents. The fact that the wind was from the north-east prevented the fire from spreading to the farm home.

Origin of the fire could not be determined by the family, and Mr. Bardon was unable to estimate the extent of the loss which is partially covered by insurance.

REDS REGAIN INITIATIVE IN KIEV SECTOR

Russians Reported Hammering Out New Advances in Dnieper Bend.

LONDON, Nov. 23—After nine days of desperate fighting, which Russian battlefield dispatches said resulted in a series of advances in the Kiev sector, the Red army troops were reported today to have regained the initiative in some sectors of the bend west of Kiev while hammering out new advances in the Dnieper bend and in White Russia.

Butressed by fleets of giant tanks, the Russians smashed powerful Nazi attacks near Korostyshev, 20 miles east of Zhitomir, regaining the battlefield with Nazi tanks and attacking 80 enemy tanks, a Russian communiqué said.

Desires blasting this new drive on Kiev, Soviet forces repulsed thrusts near Chernyakhov, 10 miles north of Zhitomir, apparently aimed at Korostyshev, key city straddling the Leningrad-Odessa and Kiev-Warsaw railways.

Field Marshal Fritz Von Manstein, who launched the new Nazi onslaught, apparently had little to show for his pains except the capture of Zhitomir and a few segments of territory to the north and east. The Russian war bulletin indicated a possible collapse of the savage Nazi counter-offensive.

Other Russian armies, meanwhile, pounded German lines to the north and south of the Kiev bulge. In the Reichstadt area in White Russia, Gen. Constantin Rokossovsky's forces struck westward on a 100-mile front to liberate 30 towns and villages, kill 800 Nazis and capture eight German tankbattles.

The Russians announced Soviet troops were said to have reached the junction of the Beresina and Dnieper rivers, 15 miles north of Rechitsa, tightening the noose around the key base of Gomel.

In the Dnieper bend Red army columns were battering their way closer to Krivoy Rog and Nikolai, Moscow declared. South of Kremenchuk, Gen. Nikita V. Zhukov's armored forces were reported to have smashed repeated counter-drives. Front dispatches said this drive had advanced 20 miles on a 30-mile front.

Southwest of Dnepropetrovsk Red army troops launched a surprise night attack to capture a strategic enemy base. U. S. WIDENING PACIFIC FRONT Another Island in Gilbert Group Occupied; U. S. Positions Improved.

By The Associated Press. Japanese preoccupation with a last-ditching for survival in the Pacific has been the main reason for the U. S. widening its invasion front in the central Pacific and allied forces against the ceaseless assault on the enemy elsewhere in the vast Pacific sphere.

Army troops and Marines who stormed the beaches of three islands in the Gilbert Islands gained ground over strong Jap opposition, and the climax appeared certain to come before long.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, told of landings on the three atoll—Abemama—in his second communiqué on the Gilbert invasion which began Saturday.

Improve Positions. The bulletin said "our troops have improved their positions. The Tokyo radio said the mid-Pacific drive already had cost the allies one medium aircraft carrier, one destroyer and 123 planes. It said six other warships were damaged. There was no official confirmation of any of the claims.

Broadening of the wedge driven into Japan's mid-Pacific outpost defenses was described in words which applied no details as to time or opposition—"We have landed on Abemama atoll" but there were implications in reports on Makin and Tarawa to make clear the battle is a bloody one.

On Tarawa, 80 miles northwest of Abemama, and on Makin, still farther north, both pounded upon the land prior to invasion, "our troops have improved their positions, but are still encountering considerable ground resistance."

Such resistance is being met under conditions which afford little natural protection for either side.

(These operations were integrated with one's to the south-west. In the Solomon Islands opposing air forces exchanged blows on Bougainville; on the Huon peninsula of New Guinea, Australians and troops have improved their positions, but are still encountering considerable ground resistance."

Details Lacking. Details as to the extent of the beachheads still were lacking but operations were viewed as encouraging. The investment of the Gilberts, a group of more than 15 atolls embracing 160 square miles, would push the allies more than 700 miles northwest of the Ellice Islands and place a menacing flanking force south of the Marshall Islands.

Admiral Nimitz reported the oldest son of the President, Lt. Col. James Roosevelt, had returned to Makin where he first stormed ashore in August, 1942, with Marines who wiped out its Japanese defenders during a surprise raid.

The capital of China's "rice bowl" succumbed to Japanese forces, but on New Guinea, New Britain and Bougainville the Japanese fell back before the allies or suffered punishing air blows.

Allied communiqués told of the destruction of 19,000 tons of Jap shipping by air attacks in the south and southwest Pacific, and the probable sinking of a 12,000-ton Jap freighter off the China coast.

As the Japanese advanced on Changteh in the drive for the Hunan, China, the Chinese high command alleged enemy troops had used poison gas.

American planes smashed at the Japs southeastern supply artery on Bougainville—a new construction truck route—while U. S. Marines forced the enemy to retreat on the east flank in the Piva river area.

REPORT 10,000 DEAD, INJURED IN HEAVY RAID

German Capital Suffers Its Fiercest Attack of War; Damage Widespread.

By The Associated Press. LONDON, Nov. 23. In the heaviest aerial bombardment in history the RAF engulfed Berlin last night with one of the most devastating explosions. Bombers downed 1,000 bombs.

First hand accounts from Berlin correspondents of Stockholm newspapers said gradually "how destruction ran through the heart of the city, wrecking government buildings and foreign legations."

Berlin never can recover from this blow, the Aftonbladet quoted its sources as saying. Industrial areas still burning from the last raid last Thursday night were smashed again. Strong formations of daylight bombers coated across the English channel to add further weight to the growing allied effort to wreck the Reich by aerial assault.

The Aftonbladet gave a preliminary estimate of 10,000 persons dead and injured. Berlin officials admitted "a very large number killed and injured."

Two Attacks Made. There were two attacks, said the Stockholm Aftonbladet correspondent. The first came early and when the first blast was given people scrambled from shelters, partly reaching the streets when the alarms hoisted a second time. This many were trapped outside shelters.

The RAF's force consisted almost entirely of four-engine bombers. Taking off from Britain in the late afternoon for their 400-mile journey, they delivered their first attack around 8 p. m.

Stockholm dispatches said the headquarters of Production Chief Albert Speer, minister of munitions, was destroyed.

It was from Speer's office of 200 rooms that he directed Germany's war production.

How crippling this blow might be to the Speer and other administrative centers was difficult to say because Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels previously had ordered evacuation of Berlin and at least some sections of government offices also had been moved.

Reports reaching Stockholm said the mighty blast of Berlin was heard there as the greatest heard ever launched on demolished Hamburg.

The first avalanche of bombs landed on a city parts of which still were smoldering from the big raid of last Thursday.

All the districts of the city of 1,000,000 as well as the suburbs were damaged and particularly heavy devastation occurred in the center of the capital near Unter den Linden, Alexanderplatz and Friedrichstrasse, said a Zurich dispatch to the Stockholm Aftonbladet.

20 Bombers Lost. Twenty-five bombers were lost in the great Berlin raid and subsidiary operations which included mosquito bomber attacks on western Germany and mauling in many waters.

The tonnage of bombs cascaded on the German capital probably exceeded the 2,300 long tons dropped on Hamburg in the last big raid on that city in August.

Returning pilots said despite a solid cloud overcast they could see for 70 miles the "great sea of flames and explosions" in Berlin.

Berlin today is covered by a huge black cloud of smoke, Swedish correspondents reported.

"We have had horrible hours," messaged the Stockholm Aftonbladet correspondent from Berlin. "Berlin burned throughout the night. Great sections of dwelling quarters, including workmen's, are a flaming sea of fire. A great number of government buildings were hit."

It was unofficially estimated in London the bomb load dumped on Berlin last night raised the total weight loaded on the German capital this far in 1943 to around 10,000 long tons, compared to the 7,500 tons dropped on London during the battle of Britain when the heaviest raid was 450 tons.

Swedish dispatches detailing last night's damage in Berlin said the center of the city suffered heavily. Several foreign legations and embassies in the diplomatic quarter, (Turn to BERLIN, Page 8)

"Patton Incident" Seen as One for Army Disposal

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23—Congressional sources indicated today that the "Patton incident" would be handled as a matter of internal army disposal.

At the close of the day's session, a source in the House of Representatives said that the incident would be handled as a matter of internal army disposal.

Takes His Hide Off

The incident was reported to Eisenhower. The commander-in-chief immediately wrote Patton a letter in which he deplored the conduct and ordered him to make amends or be relieved of his command.

Rates High as General

But he is regarded by many officers as the best field general in the American Army.

It is generally believed here by military men that Sicily would never have been conquered in 58 days had it not been for Patton's driving force.

Has Many Nicknames

He also has been dubbed with various nicknames such as "Blood and Guts."

He commanded the western task force which occupied the Atlantic coast of French Morocco in landings last November. He remained in command there until the German break-through at Kasserine Gap in Tunisia in February.

Patton Outranked Eisenhower

On arriving in Africa, Patton had a wartime rank of Major General. He was advanced to lieutenant general when he took command in Tunisia. His permanent rank was brigadier general, higher than Eisenhower's permanent rank at the time. After the Sicilian campaign, both Eisenhower and Patton were given the permanent rank of major general.

Patton supervised the landing of the Seventh Army in Sicily from a headquarters ship.

The Seventh Army swept over the western part of the island as Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British Eighth Army took the eastern part. In the mad race between the two armies, the American advance along the north coast road and were the first into Messina, from Sicily city captured.

During the battle, Patton had driven the soldiers under him as hard as he had driven himself.

Many times during the Sicilian campaign he sent exhausted and almost collapsed troops on to the line for the final blow when the enemy position.

Many officers, based on no other general in the American Army could have pushed his soldiers as hard and could have so far exceeded the most difficult terrain and three resisters in 28 days.

In the heat of the battle, Patton is considered one of the personal safety. He has been known to stick into cars on occasion.

THE OLD American Virtue of Thrift. STILL LIVES ON!

BACK in the days when Thanksgiving was new, thrift was the first law and the abiding rule. The happiness and health of the earliest Americans—yes, even their very existence—depended upon their frugal, saving ways.

And today, with Americans putting big percentages of their incomes into War Bonds, thrift has come into its own again.

We must all sacrifice and skimp and save to help win this hardest of all wars!

Please join in this pledge: "I won't buy anything—anything at all—that I don't really need."

And for the things you simply can't get along without, come to Penney's!

Penney's specializes in thrift and savings. Penney's way of doing business keeps operating expenses very low. The result is savings for Penney's and these savings are passed on to our customers—as they always have been—in the form of lower prices.

Shopping at Penney's is so important today—when dollars must stretch further than ever!

PENNEY'S

Keep Away from the G-Men,
Hitler Warns His Spies in U. S.

By FRANK L. WELLS, Associated Press Writer. A German spy chief in the United States has warned his agents to keep away from the G-men, the FBI's secret police, and to avoid any contact with them. The spy chief, who is believed to be a high-ranking German official, has issued this warning in a letter to his agents in the United States. He has told them that the G-men are very dangerous and that they should avoid any contact with them. He has also told them that they should avoid any contact with the FBI and that they should avoid any contact with the American government. He has also told them that they should avoid any contact with the American people and that they should avoid any contact with the American press.

Had Secret Information

They had secret information, according to the spy chief, and that they should use this information to their advantage. He has also told them that they should avoid any contact with the American government and that they should avoid any contact with the American people and that they should avoid any contact with the American press.

FOOD

We Want You To UNDERSTAND These Points

4. Facts on How Our Food Supply Is Allocated. Civilians, the armed forces, the allies, the liberated peoples are all represented by various boards that work out our necessary requirements. This means we will be fed well enough for health and strength—but we must make the best of the foods available—avoid waste and adjust our food habits to war conditions.

5. Facts About the Relation of Rationing and Price Control to Our Food Supply and War Strategy. Rationing divides our limited supplies equally. To keep essential foods within the reach of everyone and to stabilize prices as directed by Congress, top legal prices on these foods have been established. Violations of rationing of price ceilings, upset the regular food distribution machinery, boost prices to illegal levels and make it difficult for our armed forces to buy food—in the amount they need—when they need it.

Electricity is vital to the war effort—Please use it carefully!

How To Make Potato Pancakes

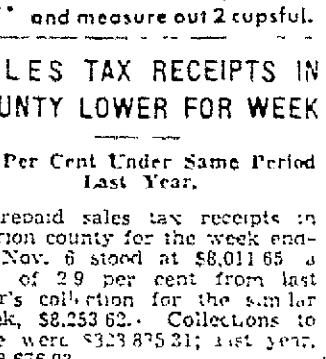

Uncle Sam says use more potatoes. Housewives are urged to buy their spuds by the 100-pound sack, store them carefully and use them often. After you've served them baked, boiled, creamed and fried, you might try potato pancakes as they are prepared by a famous Swiss chef, Hermann Rausch of New York's Belmont Plaza. Ingredients needed are 2 cups grated raw potatoes, 1 cup milk, 1 well-beaten egg, 2 tablespoons flour, salt, pepper and 1 tablespoon chopped onions. Now follow Hermann's directions, then sit back and take a bow.

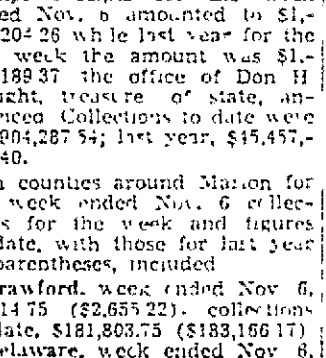

1. Assemble all ingredients and utensils you will need.

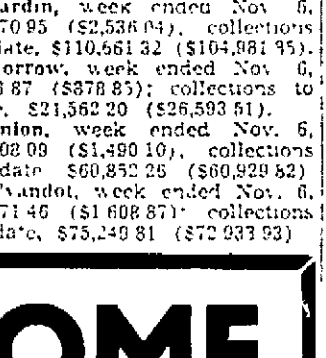

2. Grate the raw potatoes and measure out 2 cupsful.

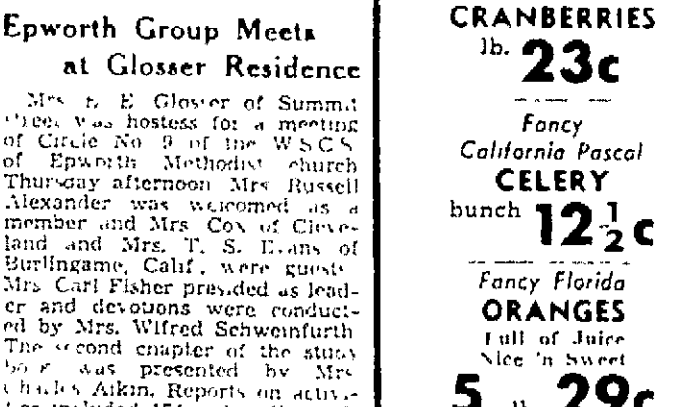

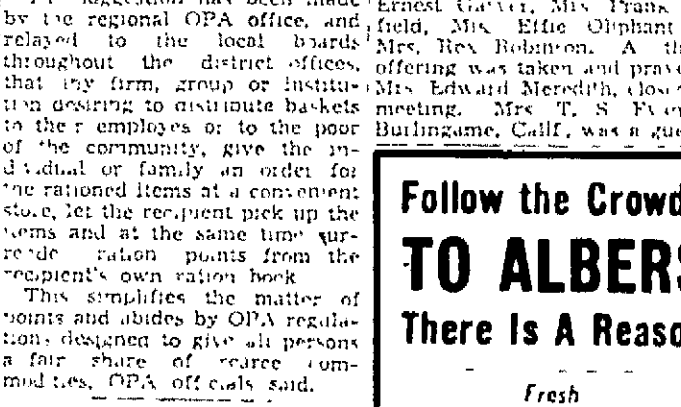

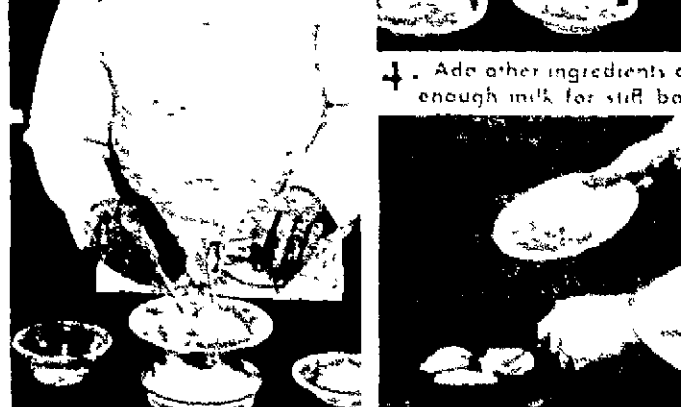

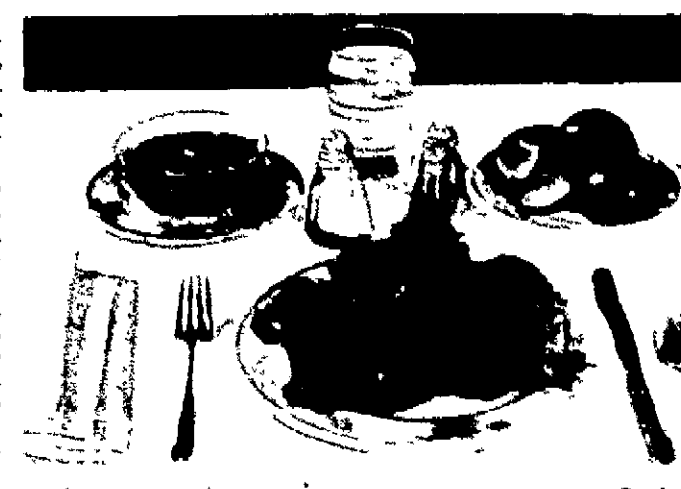

3. Add milk at once (to avoid darkening) then drain off.

4. Add other ingredients and enough milk for stiff batter.

5. Drop by spoonful into well-greased pan, brown.

Need Ration Points for Gift Baskets

OPA regulations requiring the surrendering of points for rationed goods may not be waived in the presentation of gift baskets for Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Local War Price and Rationing Boards have been advised by district officials at Columbus. The suggestion has been made by the regional OPA office, and relayed to the local boards throughout the district offices, that any firm, group or institution desiring to distribute baskets to their employees or to the poor of the community, give the individual or family an order for the rationed items at a convenient store, let the recipient pick up the items and at the same time surrender ration points from the recipient's own ration book.

This simplifies the matter of points and avoids by OPA regulations designed to give all persons a fair share of scarce commodities, OPA officials said.

St. Mary To Open Season Wednesday

Marion St. Mary's basketball team will open its season tomorrow night against Cardington High at Cardington. Unfortunately for the Irish, the letterman will be in the line-up, but the team is expected to be ready for the game.

Don Kelly and Bob Waterhouse, senior and sophomore respectively, have not fully recovered from injuries sustained in the training days of the season.

Coach Lane McGinnis' personnel are comparable to last year's team, but the Irish will have to make adjustments in their line-up to meet the challenge of the new season.

Probable starting line-up for St. Mary's basketball team: Don Kelly, center; Bob Waterhouse, forward; Larry Lever, guard; Mike Green, guard; Mike Green, guard; Mike Green, guard.

Other members of the team include: Mike Green, guard; Mike Green, guard; Mike Green, guard; Mike Green, guard; Mike Green, guard; Mike Green, guard.

Coach McGinnis doesn't expect his Green and White squad to be hampered by a height problem this year, although the average elevation of the Irish fell well below the six-foot mark.

The Irish have no return engagements booked with Cardington. Last year the Morrow county squad and the local parochials did not meet on the court but prior to that were perennial rivals.

The next St. Mary game contest will be played at Thomas A. Edison gymnasium here Saturday, Dec. 4, against Harpster.

Snatches of Sports

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—One ray of hope for the minor leagues is that the National League is planning to play a couple of games in the winter. The league is trying to get up a working agreement with the American League, but they don't want to risk spending some good prospects by playing them in the winter.

One Minute Sports Page—Harry Fitzpatrick, leading business manager of the 1943-44 season, is J. J. Baker of St. Charles, Ill., next summer.

Penalty—Just Playing—A report on the "Yankee Bee Country Club" somewhere in the South Pacific reveals that the Seabees, who constructed a jungle golf course have only four worn-out golf balls and one club, made from scrap iron and sanded-down pick handles.

Service Dept.—Ensign Paul at Missouri has become the champion known as a passer star blocking back at the Del Monte, Calif. Navy Pre-flight school.

Along with that unbeaten-untilled contingent, you'll have to count such squads as Navarre and Middlebranch, tied once in 10 starts, Wilmington, tied once in eight times, and Marion St. Mary with two deadlocks in eight attempts.

Once-beaten powerhouses include such squads as Martins Ferry, Canton McKinley, Lakewood, Port Clinton, Salem, Co-shecton, Marion Harding, Loudonville, Ashland, New Philadelphia, Piqua, and the Boys' Industrial School of Lancaster.

Somewhere in that list you'll find the best team in Ohio, so you may now start the argument. We want no part of it.

Marion's Tigers, beaten only once in 43 games, must be close to the peak after Saturday's convincing 21-0 win over Canton McKinley, the team which upset 'em 33 to 0 a year ago.

Best Ohio Team? Here's Good Chance To Start an Argument

By FRITZ HOWELL
Ohio AP Sports Editor

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 23.—If you'd like a neat argument, which no one has a chance to win, just get involved in a scrap about which Ohio school football team is entitled to the state championship.

To provide you with a bit of fuel, Massillon's mighty Tigers, Toledo Walte and Perrysburg have won 10 straight games. Van Wert, Norton, Boardman, Newark, Lorain and Cleveland Lincoln have topped nine in a row.

Along with that unbeaten-untilled contingent, you'll have to count such squads as Navarre and Middlebranch, tied once in 10 starts, Wilmington, tied once in eight times, and Marion St. Mary with two deadlocks in eight attempts.

Notre Dame Fans Can't Cheer the Irish Saturday

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—Put that Notre Dame fan in the moth balls. Joe, you ain't going nowhere.

Chicago's great assemblage of Notre Dame alumni, synthetic and otherwise, finds itself for the first time without the method or means of admittance to watch their beloved Irish play football. At Great Lakes, only a hazy career from Chicago's loyals, the Irish will attempt to win their first unbeaten-untilled season in 13 years Saturday.

There is an empty stadium seating about 25,000 to watch old Notre Dame win its 40th straight game. The Bluejackets and the Irish will play without a crowd of more than 100 out of the school's famous victory march. It's a closed game.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADLE GARRISON

I TRIED to follow my father's advice and relax while he was away. But when he returned, he was so tired and so full of worry that he needed to make love. He said he had been thinking about me all day.

But I found that I was disappointed. Not because I had been away from him, but because I had been away from the excitement of his love. I had been away from the excitement of his love.

When Dick's familiar signals came, I was so tired and so full of worry that I needed to make love. He said he had been thinking about me all day.

"Where is she?" I asked. "You probably will be alone when she awakens. She needs gentleness and the understanding. Can you—will you?"

"I'm all ready for anything," he said with an intention that had something solemn in it. "Please believe me, Aunt Madge, I can take care of my little sister and I will. You can leave her to me without a single qualm. Her old brother, Ron, is on the job."

Will Rest Easy
"I'm so glad, Ronald," I said, "and I shall rest easy about Carolyn while I have to be away from her. And I am sure you were much relieved at the news. Uncle Dicky gave you a good explanation with glowing eyes. 'Only a marriage, in name only,' for Carolyn. We can surely squish that when the time comes, perhaps without mother and Aunt knowing. Uncle Dicky Marion got to know how sure of himself and then to realize what a marvelous girl she is, even though that sacrifice of hers was the most Quixotic thing imaginable. I can't talk about it. Aunt Madge can't talk about it. The only thing I can do is to take care of her, not only because I want to more than anything else in the world, but also because I know it is the thing Marion would want me to do."

Like a Knight
He was like a young knight with his lance in rest, and his lady's glove in his cup. The mental photograph was clear as I looked at him, and I saw my father rising from the desk, and I had time only for a murmured "Yes."

"I'm so glad for you, dear boy," I said, "and I know Carolyn is safe with you. Watch for her waking, so she won't be startled. I'll leave the door ajar."

He nodded his understanding, and then my father had reached us.

"Ah, Ronald," he said, holding out his hand. "Glad to see you. We're going to leave you here now for a while, to take care of your sister when she awakens. It order it or anything for yourself. We shall not be long gone—not more than two or three hours at the most."

"Two or three hours?" I repeated to myself with a queer little sinking feeling in my chest.

What was this business of leaving me and taking care of Carolyn? I had been thinking about her all day. But when he returned, he was so tired and so full of worry that he needed to make love. He said he had been thinking about me all day.
